WEST VIRGINIA STATE COLLEGE 1971

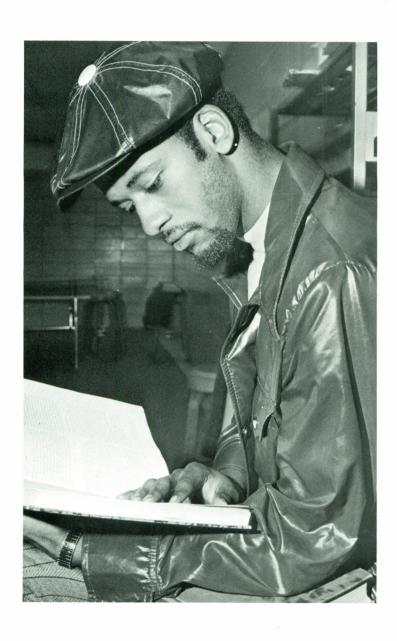

A year of change and development . . .

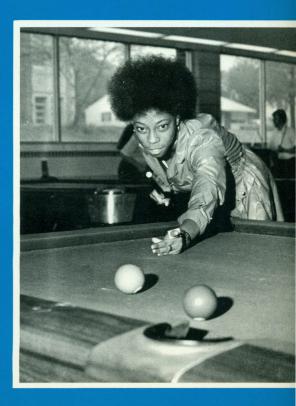

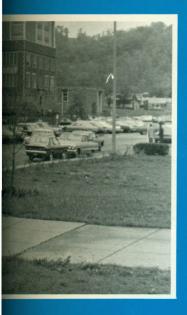

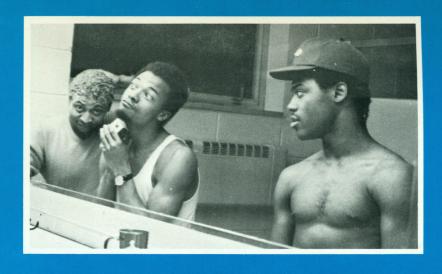

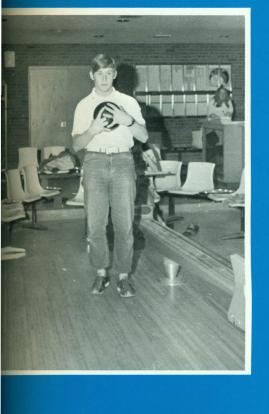

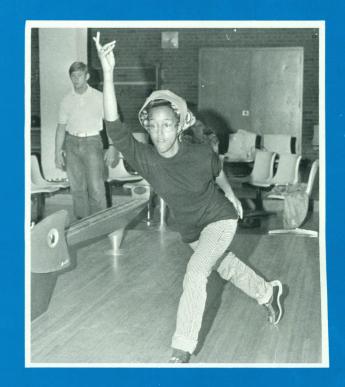

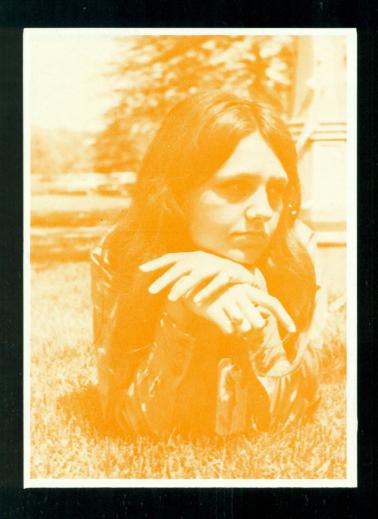

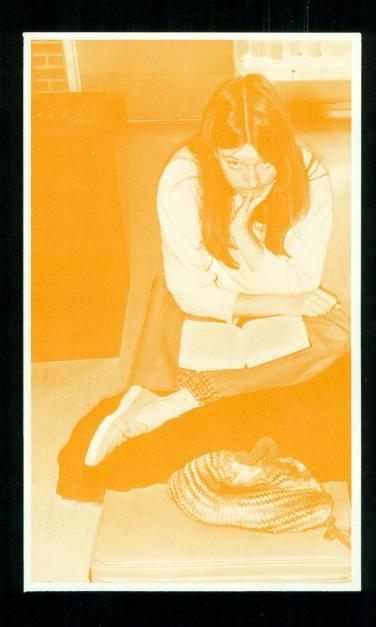

IN MEMORIAM

Sylvester Freeman Clarke November 7, 1970

"Good night, sweet Prince. And flights of angels sing thee to sleep." Hamlet, Act v, Scene II

West Virginia State College notes with a deep sense of loss the death of Sylvester Freeman Clarke on November 7, 1970.

Professor Clarke was a dedicated and creative teacher who will be long remembered for his singular contributions to both the departments of Drama and English, as well as his outstanding service in other areas of the college and surrounding communities.

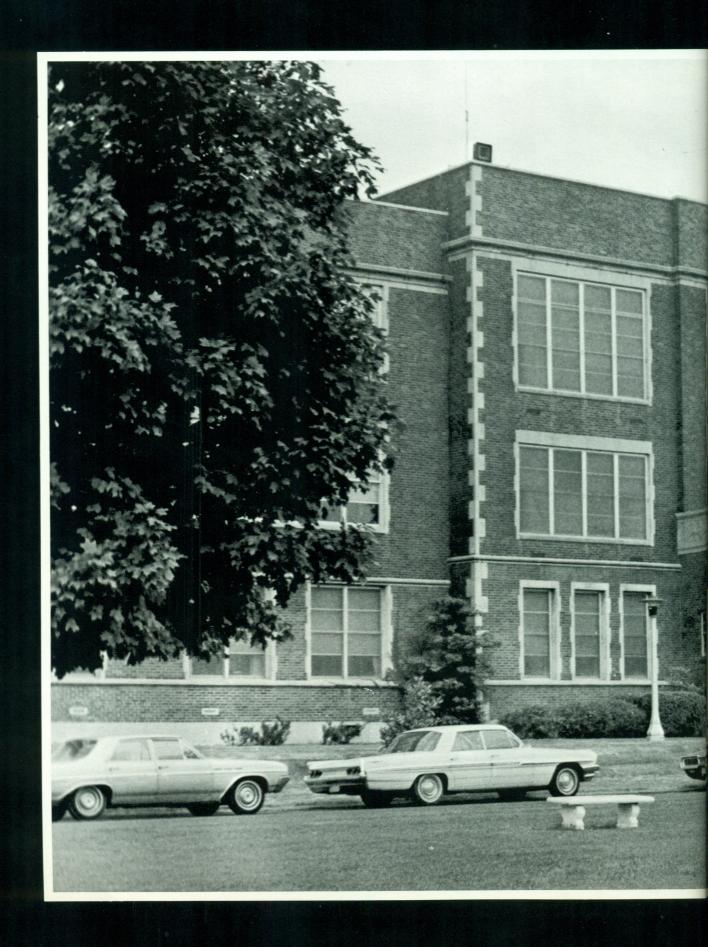

Committed to excellence in all his pursuits, he labored long and diligently to effect dramatic productions and classroom presentations of the highest quality.

His courage, zest for living, imagination, competence and mature judgment were reflected in everything he touched.

We have lost a great teacher and a dear friend. We of the college community, in an era of expanding educational facilities and service, realize the loss of his personal devotion to the growth of a greater West Virginia State College. To him and the inspiration and the heritage he left us, we dedicate this book — the Arch — a small recognition of a great teacher.

ADMINISTRATION

President William J. L. Wallace

The school year 1970-71 has been a very momentous year in the history of the college. The new High Rise Dormitory was completed and occupied; the new Dining Center was opened; additional Recreational Space in the College Union Building became available; and, eight bowling alley lanes were installed in the College Union and placed in use. These facilities have added immensely to the living comfort and recreational outlets for students and staff. In addition, the four older dormitories were remodeled and renovated with Prillerman Hall, formerly a dormitory for men being converted to apartments for married students and staff.

On the academic side, the college faculty embarked on a vigorous program of curriculum revision involving the participation of a number of students in seminars and conferences. The recommendations from these meetings contained fundamentals for changing our approaches to the general education aspects of various degree programs. Future workshops are being planned with the cooperation of Rhode Island College to prepare materials for the various groups that will be involved in the new program.

The school year ended on an optimistic note with the college receiving many positive statements of support from its public. Extra curricular programs, including the intercollegiate athletic programs, apparently were carried out with great success.

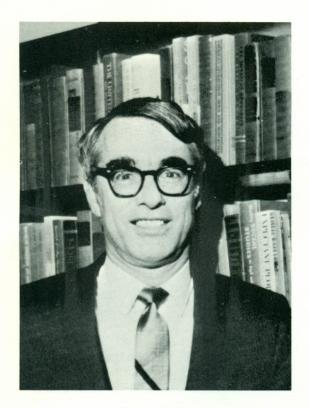

I sincerely hope that each and every student in attendance during this year experienced a profitable year, taking advantage of the numerous opportunities for intellectual and spiritual growth.

I also hope that the Arch staff has caught the spirit of the school year 1970-71 in this edition.

AS FRESHMEN

WE WERE

RUGGED!!!

As Freshmen,

we were enthusiastic conformists,

though we pictured ourselves as rugged individuals, ready to take college by storm,

if necessary. We withstood a barrage of impetuous sophomores and an illustrious faculty. We endured cold water showers and lonely Saturday nights. We waged vigorous snow ball battles in February and soothed sun-burned bodies in

May. Our Freshman year was a carefree one!

WEST VIRGINIA STATE COLLEGE, FAREWELL

Once more, I'll fill my eyes with all I see,
For all I see in this valley I own.
No writ to violate the equity
Transfers me, land or tree or brick or stone.

But I've become to valley, shrub and air

A kin, and loved these paths that led me on.

These roofs that sheltered like a guarding prayer,
I'll mint in memory as dear as home.

I came to you and you accepted me.

Wise in permission, you released my power;

Affirmed and blest and molded patiently

Until I knew the way and call and hour.

Your teaching textured of your heart and soul—
The things you are—revealed my own design.
Farewell is but a new dimension to the whole.

Dear State——all the things you are, are mine!
