FORWARD

WVSC: Thirty Years after the Brown Decision

The anxiety that accompanied the 1954 Brown decision was best expressed in a Charleston, West Virginia newspaper editorial: "Should the State of West Virginia continue to operate the two separate state colleges for Negroes when they are no longer needed is the $64 question."

While the editorial did not criticize the quality of education at West Virginia State College, it was known that the College's enrollment had dropped from a post-World War II boom of 1,791 to a low of 831 in 1953 with only half of the 831 being West Virginia residents. With 10 existing White public colleges that under the decision had to open their doors to Blacks, the answer to the $64 question seemed clear -- close West Virginia State College. However, how the question was answered at West Virginia State College following the Supreme Court's decision was not typical of the Nation's other All-Black colleges.

Led by a dynamic new President, Dr. William J.L. Wallace, the College's faculty, staff and student body was mobilized to save the college through an integration-in-reverse program. The doubters who did not believe that White students would attend the College were shocked to find that the 1954-55 Fall Semester student body was composed of 20 percent White students. The hard work from all elements of the College helped enormously to make the transition a success.

By the fall of 1956, the percentage of White students had climbed to over 50 percent of the student body. Comments from White students from that time period indicate that they not only found West Virginia State College to be an institution that provided educational opportunities within easy commuting distance of their homes, but also a first class College with a first class faculty, staff, and student body.

Thirty years after the College opened its doors to White students, historically, it continues to stand alone in the State and nation as it relates to the uniqueness of the transformation that has taken place. Today's student body, faculty and staff have representatives from several nations, races, and classes. This composition, comprising approximately 4,500 persons, adds much to the democratic life of the College as all members of the College community learn to live and work together in a nation and world often beset by misunderstandings, untruths, prejudices, and violence. Perhaps it was this observation on the part of President-Emeritus Wallace that led him to characterize West Virginia State College as "a living laboratory of human relations" "where excellence is a tradition."

NOTE: Material used in the forward was taken from a 1972 article, "Integration-in-Reverse: Going from Black to Black and White," by Andrew H. Calloway in the February issue of College and University Business.

EBONY AND IVORY

For thirty years, Ebony and Ivory
Going to college together in harmony
Like the keys on a piano, Black and White
Integration for West Virginia State has been right.

Ebony and Ivory, a success together that gleams
We've shown that people can plant dreams
Like on a piano keyboard, side by side
"State's" tradition of excellence is riding a tide.

Ebony and Ivory, a tradition that's here to stay
We've learned to live and to give to each other every day
Side by side like a piano's keys
The college thrives, a symbol that the world sees.

PRESIDENT

Charlotte Fuller
Administrative Assistant

Sam Lee, first white student to register at West Virginia State College,

Samuel F. Lee, Jr.

West Virginia State College, for the past 31 years, has been a shining example to the greater Kanawha Valley as a laboratory of human relations. The Supreme Court of the United States made it possible for me to attend West Virginia State College. The day following the Supreme Court decision I made arrangements with Harrison Ferrell, the Dean, to enroll in the fall term for the school year of 1954-55. I attended State College and graduated in June 1957.

During my college years at West Virginia State I experienced the integration process in the reverse. In the fall term of 1954, there were only a few white students. However, three years later at the time of my graduation, the integration process was well established.

Since graduation I have worked in the Kanawha County School System for 25 years as a teacher and principal with scores of West Virginia State College trained teachers. I have observed that these teachers are very skillful in understanding the needs of our varied ethnical and racial groups.

I feel that West Virginia State College has for 31 years been a living example of a laboratory of human relations.

When I reflect on the integration of WVSC in the Fall of 1954 and my role as Student Government Association President, the first thing that enters my mind is the Administration's concerns about avoiding any incidents that might reflect unfavorably on the Institution or might create a backlash from the white community. The atmosphere suggested that we, the Black students, were somehow on trial and that this was some grand experiment that could be revoked rather than the following of a mandate from the Supreme Court. In retrospect, I can understand how this mentality on the part of the Black community came to be. As Blacks, we had always been admonished by our parents, teachers, and elders to always be on our best behavior in order not to perpetuate a Black stereotype of being unruly and boisterous. So, it follows that we considered ourselves to always be on trial. One interesting paradox that also comes to mind is the National Student Body President Conference I attended that year as Student Body President. The major topic of discussion was integration, however, the focus was on "Blacks integrating previously all-white institutions." To expand the paradox another interesting phenomenon occurred during the year. As the influx of white students increased, some Blacks expressed their dismay that "whites were taking over WVSC." Despite the concerns and paradoxes, from my perspective, the first year of integration at WVSC turned out to be rather unremarkable. The unique transformation of WVSC from segregated to integrated--in reverse--was accomplished without incident.

WVSC, Living Laboratory of Human Relations

In the early days of integration at WVSC the phrase, "A Living Laboratory of Human Relations," was more than just an empty slogan. It was in fact, a credo by which we began to explore our world in different terms and to re-order our lives accordingly. To understand its meaning you would have had to know the conditions of relationships between Blacks and Whites in the early 1950's.

The Kanawha Valley in those days was strictly segregated. To those of us who came from integrated areas in the northern U.S., it came as a surprise to find that Blacks could not eat in local restaurants, nor sit in orchestra seats at theaters. Blacks attended separate schools and many held menial jobs in spite of having a good education. On the other hand, whites who enjoyed most of the privileges were also handicapped. By law, they could not attend WVSC because segregation worked both ways. This meant that many local people were prevented from obtaining a college education because of lack of access.

Even in the north, social relationships had not been encouraged. The only Black girl in the high school English class used to walk home with us until her mother warned her not to associate with white people. Thus, when area students braved convention by attending WVSC after President William J.L. Wallace followed the law in desegregating the college, the first few white students were unsure of a welcome. We came with goodwill but an almost total lack of understanding of our fellow students and teachers. For most of us it was a first time experience to meet a Black person on equal terms and to exchange ideas.

DR. Ethel
Professor/Chair, Modern

Our teachers set an example of courage, grace, and intelligence that was most impressive. So many of them, we discovered, were graduates of outstanding colleges and had imposing degree credentials and honors. Their thorough competency in subject matter and the academic standards they imposed commanded our respect. Sometimes they spoke to us about the Black experience and we began to know what it meant to be a Black Ph.D. who had to sit in the back of the bus, or who was not allowed to teach in the almost totally white universities from which they had been graduated. These teachers gained our esteem and admiration.

Relationships with fellow students were somewhat more tentative and it took time to develop understanding. We gradually began to appreciate each other after class discussions which were encouraged by our wise and perceptive teachers. Then we progressed to sometimes heated arguments over coffee at Andy's and to sincere friendships. From that time on we could never again regard people as the strange and different "other".

Those who view the college's slogan with derision should know that it signalled the beginning of a noble experiment. If, as Dr. Wallace has often said, experimentation does not necessarily guarantee success, a great many of us do not doubt its power. We alumni know that the experience has changed our lives and with goodwill, will continue to have its effect on the lives of others who come after us.

LIVING LABORATORY OF HUMAN RELATIONS

Living laboratory of human relations is an apt metaphor for West Virginia State College, combining the premises and motivations which define the institution and move it to action.

Living laboratory of human relations means observing the common humanity masked by cultural diversity.

It means practicing..and testing respectful citizenship in class, on campus, and in the community.

It means mastering the theorems of the past in order to make sound assumptions for the present and meaningful predictions for the future.

It means measuring that which is measurable, revering that which is not, and acting on the basis of both.

It means drawing equally upon technological and human resources, and sometimes making an intuitive leap from hypothesis to faith.

A living laboratory of human relations --

*It is doubt dissecting truth;
it is truth dissecting doubt.*

It is the sciences and the humanities joining voices in "Let there be."

It is the Word quickened to life and action.

Galbraith sessions continue

By Bill Case
STAFF WRITER

In a session with faculty and students from several Kanawha Valley colleges Monday at West Virginia State College, John Kenneth Galbraith fielded questions on a wide range of topics.

Asked to summarize his answers at the end of the hour-and-a-half grilling, Galbraith said, "that would be like summarizing 20 articles picked at random from the Encyclopaedia Britannica."

Galbraith, who was Ambassador to India and an adviser to several Democratic presidents, and now is a Harvard University professor, economist and a novelist, is appearing at West Virginia State as a Gazette Visiting Scholar.

He turned aside several questions on current economic policy, saying he planned to address that subject in a speech at 9:30 a.m. today in Ferrell Auditorium. It is open to the public.

Among his observations Monday:

▲ Socialism in the industrialized nations today stems more from the decline of major industries and financial institutions than from socialist agitation from radicals. "It's not an exceptional thing anymore," he said of the government bailout of Continental Illinois Bank, Lockheed, Chrysler and major railroads. "If you are big enough, you are rescued. Continental Illinois got all its loans guaranteed — a smaller bank in Charleston would not be similarly rescued. There's an inconsistency there."

▲ "The border between the United States and Mexico is one of the great fictions of all time. We would have an enormous shortage of labor in agriculture, routine factory operations and city services if we did not have an effectively open border with Mexico and the West Indies."

Economist and author John Kenneth Galbraith fields questions during an appearance at West Virginia State College Monday. Galbraith is a Gazette Visiting Scholar and will speak at 9:30 a.m. today at the college.

▲ "Affluent people can invent more reasons for reducing their marginal rate of taxation than you can imagine. Any time you hear the word 'incentive,' watch out. Someone's looking for a way to increase their own after-tax income."

▲ "There will be very little change in Canada," as a result of the recent election of a conservative prime minister. "You would have to take a microscope to find the differences between the Progressive Conservative Party and the Liberal Party, which could be called the Conservative Liberal Party."

▲ "We have become increasingly negligent of the continuing poverty in this country. All countries have developed devices of ignoring the existence of the poor. The intellectual rationalizations today are social disorientation as a result of social welfare programs; lack of incentive — the idea that the poor have too much money; and the notion that government is uniquely ineffective, but corporations can do everything with marvelous efficiency."

▲ "Withdrawing our attention from the countries in Central America won't make life happy there — but our intervention does more harm than good."

▲ "There has been a profound effort on the part of a very large part of our profession (economists) to make it seem more scientific. But my lifelong impression has been that as economics becomes more specialized, it gets further and further from reality."

Sports Illustrated's Frank Deford

By Danny Wells
STAFF WRITER

Frank Deford, an award-winning senior writer of Sports Illustrated, has a warm spot in his heart for West Virginia.

"One of the first good feature stories I wrote for Sports Illustrated was about Hot Rod Hundley," he explained. "It was after he had left the NBA. He was selling Converse sneakers and I followed him all around the state. The story helped me a lot in my career at Sports Illustrated."

Deford, whose features are often punctuated with wry humor and astute asides, returned to West Virginia Thursday as a guest lecturer at West Virginia State College. It was his first trip to the state since the Hundley story.

Though he doesn't profess to know the answers to today's complicated sports questions, his observations frequently are entertaining, as well as enlightening.

Speaking at State Friday morning, Deford traced the evolution of football's role in the American society and called Yale the country's "first football factory."

"Football was first played by the upper class to prove their manhood," said Deford. "Colleges wanted football for image reasons."

Noting that some things haven't changed through the years, he said a game was canceled in 1870 because the college president thought too much emphasis was being placed on the sport.

"The problem in sports came when discrimination began for or against athletes," said Deford. "Eventually people began to use sports to favor the university."

Frank Deford is a writer with Sports Illustrated. He joined the magazine in 1962. He does commentary for Cable News Network and National Public Radio and is the author of several books, the most recent being "Alex: The Life of a Child." The book is about his daughter, Alexandra, who died in 1980 from cystic fibrosis. Deford is national chairman of Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. He was in Charleston to attend a convocation at West Virginia State College.

And it reached the point that Oklahoma residents sometimes joke that "we want a university that the football team can be proud of."

He pointed to Oral Roberts as one of the most recent schools to use athletics to enhance its image. "First, they built a prayer tower, then they built a basketball power."

Deford said building athletic powers soon led to cheating. "Cheating isn't new, it just gets more sophisticated. Now they cheat to get a $1 million TV contract."

He said a school's graduation rate can reflect whether an athlete is being treated like a piece of meat. And he said a college president should take a more active role in eliminating cheating in athletics.

"The president should call the coach in and tell him he won't tolerate cheating," said Deford.

He sounded a warning that is often repeated by sociologist Harry Edwards concerning the futility of high school students' wasting an opportunity to get an education by pinning their hopes on a professional sports career.

"It's a cruel hoax," he said. "I understand you just passed a bill for lottery in this state. You have a better chance at winning the lottery than playing professional sports. Of the 500,000 kids playing high school basketball every year, only 150 make it in the NBA."

EMPIRE BRASS

The Empire Brass is a chamber ensemble whose performances and recordings have set international standards. Since its original members were introduced to each other in 1972 at Tanglewood by Leonard Bernstein, the Empire Brass has established itself worldwide through its annual concerts and television appearances in the United States, Europe, and Japan. The first brass ensemble ever to receive the Naumburg Chamber Music Award, and winner of the Harvard Musical Association Prize, the Empire Brass has performed for the President of the United States, Queen Elizabeth II, and for the 90th Anniversary of Carnegie Hall. Their more than 20 recordings appear on the CBS, Sine Qua Non, and Digitech labels. Vincent Bach Stradivarius Brasses, manufactured by The Selmer Company, are used by members of the Empire Brass in all performances, and The Empire Brass Music Series is published by G. Schirmer, Inc. As Quintet-in-residence at Boston University, the members of the Quintet serve on the faculty there and conduct the Empire Brass Seminar at the Boston University Tanglewood Institute each summer.

During the 1960's, most college campuses were exciting places to be and West Virginia State College was no different. So many things were happening and so many experiences were there to be felt. This was a time of upheaval and unrest throughout the country, and for many people, these same feelings were within one's self. They were not happy with the direction in which their lives seemed to be heading. I knew just how they felt.

I not only began my college career later than most freshmen, but my reason for starting was different too. At the age of twenty-eight, married with three children, I was suffering from "The Disease with No Name," a term coined by author Betty Friedan. This disease occurs among housewives who feel trapped in the never ending dirty diapers, dirty dishes, and dirty clothes. There are illusions of bars across the windows, a feeling of little self-esteem, and an attitude of "Is this all there is?" when thinking about life. Of course, society helped these women along by telling them that they were, indeed, sick if the role of wife and mother was less than satisfying. With garden clubs, church socials, home-room mothers, and scouting - what more could a woman need to be fulfilled? Well, apparently I needed more.

When my mental dissatisfaction began to become a physical problem, my physician suggested that I find something to do that I would enjoy, something just for me. It was then that I discovered West Virginia State College. Little did I know how it would challenge me.

The idea of going to college was frightening and yet, exciting at the same time. I had never done well in school before. I did so poorly in High School that I quit my senior year and got married. Imagine me going back to the world of education. Never!

Mustering all the courage that I possessed, I went to registration (that alone should have discouraged me). Bravely I signed up for one class-audited. I was brave enough to go to college, yet not brave enough to take any tests. I also carefully picked a class that I felt comfortable with. Surely, if asked a question by the instructor in "Marriage and Family Relations," the title of the course, I could answer without sounding too dumb.

At the end of the semester, I realized that I could have passed the exams and vowed the next class would be taken for credit. The following semester I took my G.E.D. test for my High School diploma and signed up for freshman English. I sailed through the class and made a semester grade of "B". With more confidence, I signed up for Arts Survey the next semester.

Of course, my experiences were not all smooth sailing. I recall Dr. Anderson, my advisor, saying: "Mrs. Hunt, you'll never get through college taking one class at a time!" I also remember Miss Farmer saying after reading one of my papers: "Mrs. Hunt, you can't spell "pregnant" and you've been that way three times?" And in my Arts Survey class, I remember extolling the virtues of wonderful American Democracy to Mr. Prewitt, and he, along with all the black students in the class, looked at me as if I had spent my life in a cave- Oh, did I have a lot to learn.

And learn I did. I was taught to listen, to value the thoughts and ideas of others, and especially, to see the world through the eyes of many different people. The decade of the 60's was a very special time to be at West Virginia State for it was a time of discussion - flower children and "hippies" discussed life as they experienced it - so did black students, oriental students, African students, and students from the Middle East.

It was time for protest - protest against the ROTC on campus, protest against the treatment of blacks in America, protest against the role of women in America. It was a time of black power, women's rights, children's rights, civil rights, and anti-war.

But most of all, it was a time for growth, a time for formulating ideals and a philosophy of life. No one on campus during this time walked away untouched. West Virginia

State College truly was the "Living Laboratory of Human Relations" as it claimed to be. My doctor's suggestion turned out to be exactly the right prescription for me.

(Connie Hunt graduated from West Virginia State College with honors. She now holds two undergraduate degrees and one graduate degree).

TRACK MAN of the YEAR

ALL CONFERENCE

If Rocky Hale had more muscles and wasn't scared of heights, he probably could score in any track and field event imaginable.

As it is, the lithe acrophobic piled up points in eight of the 18 events scheduled in the West Virginia Conference meet Saturday and Sunday at Laidley Field.

In a performance that would have made Jim Thorpe proud, Hale won the 200-meter dash in 22.03 seconds, set a WVC record in the 400 dash with a 47.97 clocking, broke the conference mark in the 400 intermediate hurdles with a time of 54.5, led the 4 x 100 and 4 x 400 relay teams to victories and placed third in both the long jump (6.58 meters) and triple jump (13.63 meters).

By the time the East Bank native concluded his one-man show, he had piled up 47 points, had a hand (or foot) in five victories, had personally out-scored half of West Virginia State's competition (West Virginia Wesleyan scored just 32 points and the University of Charleston 10), led the Yellow Jackets to an incredible total of 283 points and the WVC title and captured the conference's trackman of the year award for the second time in three seasons.

Not bad for a day's work, huh?

"Whew, it was a workout," gasped Hale.

But he gasped with a grin.

13 lettermen return to open baseball season

The Yellow Jackets baseball team launched their season at Winthrop College.

Coach Calvin Bailey showed a career record of 153-78-1 following last season's 18-10 record in which the Yellow Jackets won the regular season championship of the West Virginia Conference. In the District 28 NAIA playoffs, WVSC fell to Shepherd for the District 28 title.

The 1985 edition of the Yellow Jackets showed six starters and 13 lettermen returning.

Charlie Wright, an outfielder from Holly Hills, SC returned for his senior spring after batting .429 as a junior.

Other leading hitters back were outfield Robbie Setser, a sophomore from Van, who hit .362 last season, third baseman Rusty Clark, a sophomore from Herbert Hoover, who hit .345, and catcher Alex Nagy, a sophomore from Logan, who hit .308.

Ken Golden from Weirton was the top pitcher returning. Golden, a junior, had a 4-1 record last year. Steve Seakelly, a freshman, starred on Logan High School's Class AAA championship team.

Jackets take 2nd in WVC

A young State baseball team captured 21 West Virginia Conference wins to take second place in the WVC 1985 season, and landed five players on the all-conference team.

With only two seniors, Charlie Wright and Mike Turner, and one junior, Kenny Golden, the Yellow Jackets hammered out a respectable .338 team batting average en route to advancing to the District 28 NAIA playoff.

State was defeated in the playoff Saturday at Watt Powell Park by West Liberty in two games, 11-3 and 8-6. Liberty, with a 26-3 conference record, accounted for four of State's five conference losses this season.

Making the all-conference team were: Golden, who pitched 7-2 on the season, with five shutouts, pitcher of the year; State's co-captain, Wright, who had a .340 batting average and 13 home runs, designated hitter; Brian Lawrence, sophomore, first base; Mark McCoy, freshman, outfield (McCoy also led State with a .440 batting average); and Rusty Clark, sophomore, utility fielder.

Turner, a co-captain and outfielder, received an honorable mention.

Vredeveld leads team to No. 2 spot

Bud Vredeveld earned his second conference "player of the year" title May 4 after leading State's tennis team into second place at the WVIAC tournament. Vredeveld a senior, was a winner in both the top singles and doubles matches.

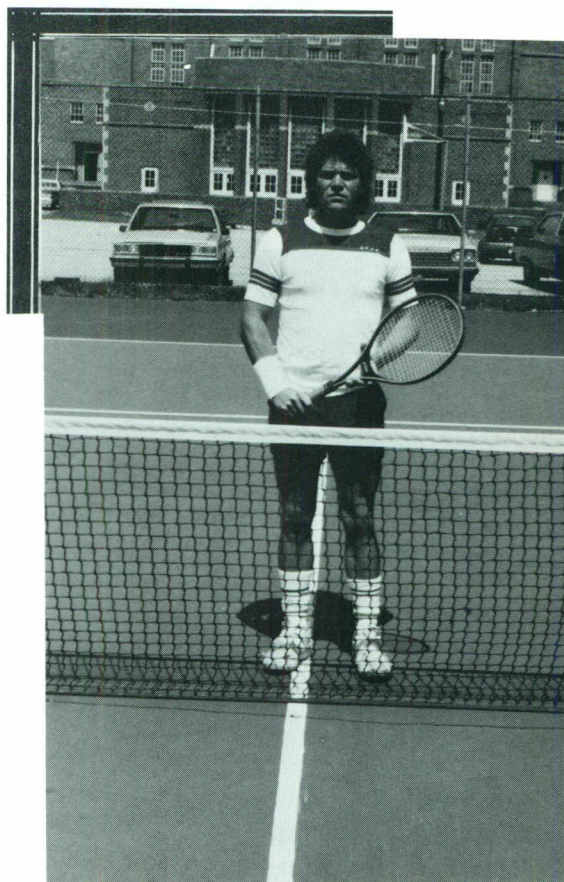

West Liberty, the tournament's host, was its overall winner.

Vredeveld defeated West Liberty's Ted Beck, 6-3, 6-2, in the No. 1 singles. He also teamed with John Velasquez, a senior, in the No. 1 doubles to beat Fairmont, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3, a victory which qualified the pair for the NAIA national tennis tournament. The tournament will be held in Kansas City, Mo., May 20-24.

Freshman Gary Crites won 6-1, 6-0, in his singles match against West Liberty's Dan Snyder and, along with Jackie Clark, a junior, defeated West Liberty in No. 2, doubles, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Besides Vredeveld, State also placed Velasquez and Crites on the all-conference team.

Bud Vredeveld

Bud is captain of the 1985 team, a Senior Recreation Major and number one player. In the 1985 season he won the conference tournament at the number one position and was the conference "player of the year".

Jackets play 91 hours

Assistant coach Jim Boone said the State coaches called the library this summer and were told the world record for a basketball game was 90 hours and two minutes by a college in Scotland.

The West Virginia State College Yellow Jackets ended their marathon basketball game at 7:05 a.m. Monday after 91 hours and five minutes.

The main thing is that we raised a lot of money to finance our trip to Hawaii," Boone said. He said the team has $3,800 in pledges from the marathon game and he expects the total to go over $4,000. The Jackets will travel to Hawaii Nov. 30-Dec. 8.

NOW FOR A MARATHON SNOOZE — West Virginia State basketball players preferred a rest on courtside mattresses to a celebration when they broke the record for the longest basketball game — 91 hours and five minutes. Resting players are Derrick Giles, using a basketball for a pillow in the foreground; Curtis Townes, sitting with his back against the wall, and Ron Legette, holding balloons brought to the players by an admirer at 1 a.m. — Daily Mail Photo by Kenny Kemp.

The Black squad of Curtis Townes, James Washington, Laddin Lakey, Doug Hobson and Derrick Giles won the marathon game, 10,234 to 10,203, over the Gold team of Ron Legette, Jeff Woods, J. L. Layne, Wil Rogers and head Coach Craig Carse.

Derrick Giles • 22

Early in OT, Derrick Giles, a 6-4, 195-pound senior, grabbed the reins for State. After Washington hit one foul shot to put the Jackets up 81-80, Giles bucketed both ends of a one-and-one and a follow-up to put State ahead 85-80. The Yellow Jackets never looked back.

Giles followed Peterson's basket by stealing the ball and driving for a layup and a 60-50 lead.

Derrick Giles, a 6-4, 195-pound senior, then hit a three-point goal from straight-away to put State ahead 24-21.

After an exchange of routine baskets made the score 30-23, Giles canned another three-pointer from the left side.

Curtis Townes • 5

Two Jackets voted best by coaches

Curtis Townes and Jessie Peterson were voted among the conference best by the college coaches.

Townes, who averaged 18.5 points and made 84 percent of his free throws, was named to the first team all-conference

State finished the game by making 14 straight free throws, including six in a row by Townes.

Townes then lobbed an alley-oop pass to Peterson, who hit a layup to put State ahead 54-48.

State point guard Curtis Townes, a former Williamson High star, got things started with a 19-foot jump shot off the right baseline that tied the game.

It was Townes — who else? — who began the spurt by nailing a three-pointer from straight-away to give the Jackets a 52-48 lead.

Moments later, with the Jackets trailing 31-28, Curtis Townes seized the spotlight for State. He hit three long jumpers — including two three-pointers — to score eight of State's next 10 points and put the Jackets in front 38-35.

Townes finished the run by stealing the ball at midcourt, driving to the basket and swishing a left-handed layup while being closely guarded. State was ahead 35-23 en route to a

Jesse Peterson • 52

He contributed averages of 15 points and 10.1 rebounds and put his name in the Yellow Jackets' record book as their all-time leader in field goal percentage for a season, 150-214 for 70.1 percent, and for a career, 380-625 for 60.8 percent.

He cracked the top 10 in team career rebounding with 675.

Peterson Ignites State's Upset

Early in the game, Jesse Peterson was shooting with radar accuracy. With 17:40 left in the first half, West Virginia State was behind 6-4. Peterson then scored the Yellow Jackets' next 15 points.

"When you score 15 points in a row for your school," he said, "it's because your teammates are passing you the ball — they're getting the ball to the open man. We're a family. When we play as a unit, we can't be beaten."

State was not beaten last night at Institute. The Yellow Jackets negotiated a huge upset with their 99-92 overtime victory over West Virginia Wesleyan, which entered the game ranked sixth in the nation in the NAIA.

Peterson's emphasis on teamwork was appropriate. The Jackets certainly spread the glory around against Wesleyan. State didn't rely on one superstar to pull off the shocking win. Once Peterson cooled off, another Jacket picked up the slack.

The Jackets' triumph stopped Wesleyan's streak of 32 straight regular-season West Virginia Conference wins. The streak began after Wesleyan lost to Glenville State Feb. 17, 1983.

Then came the play of the game. Jesse Peterson, a 6-6, 210-pound senior, cleaned the defensive board and fired a pass three-quarters of the court to Townes near the sideline in front of Shepherd's bench. In one motion, Townes leaped to catch the ball and, while he was hovering in midair, rifled a pass into the foul lane to Woods, who was streaking down the middle for a layup that put State ahead 28-21.

WVSC COLLEGE UNION RE-OPENING

Steven Spencer
Chairperson, College Union Board

By Gili Hazelwood

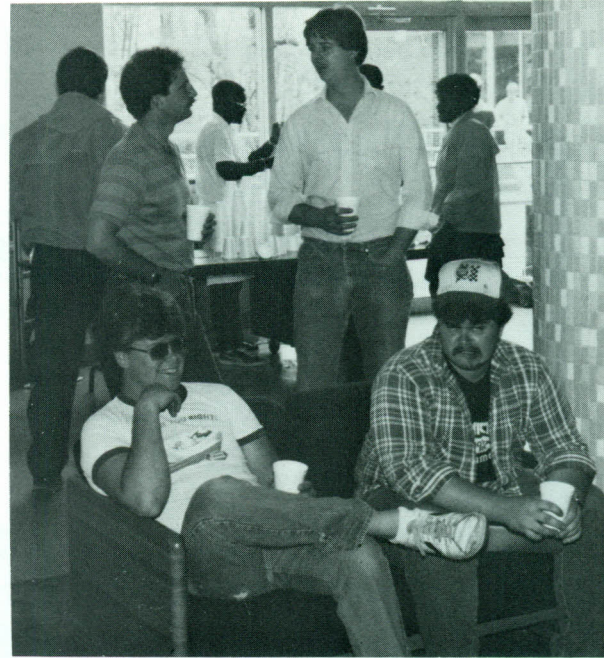

STAFF WRITER

When Steven Spencer narrowly was defeated last spring in his election campaign for president of the West Virginia State College student body, he didn't withdraw and sulk.

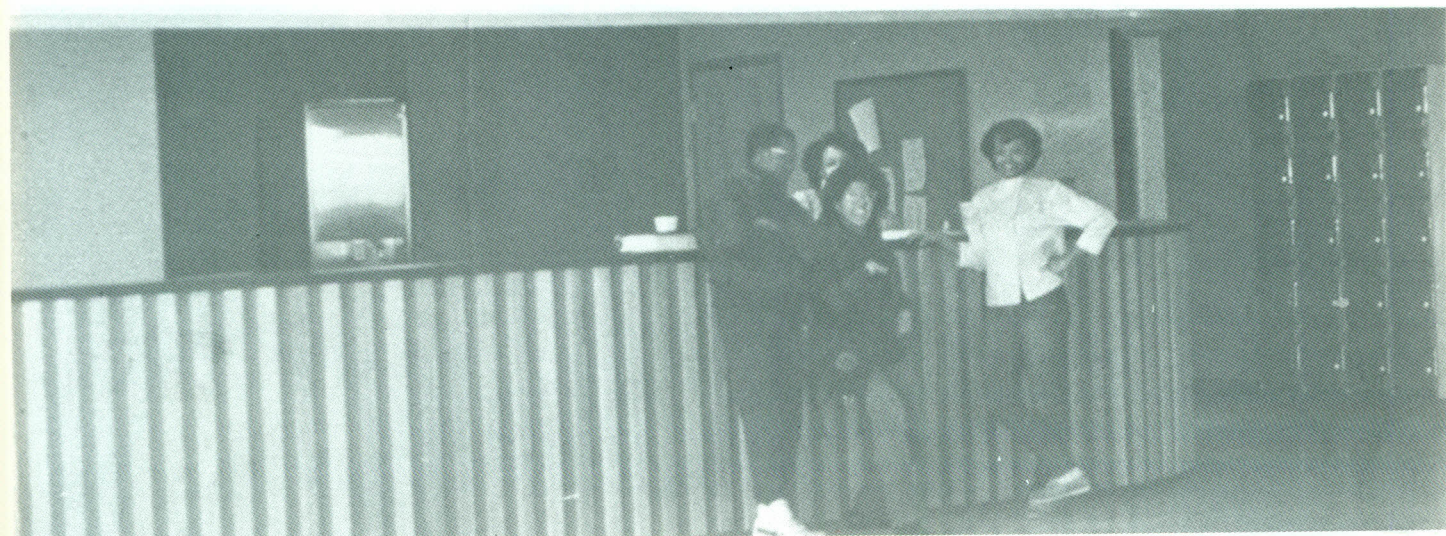

Instead, Spencer rebounded and resolved to make a contribution as he could. The opportunity arose this fall, when Spencer accepted an appointment to plan the revival of the student union. The union had lapsed several years earlier because a temporary college library was set up there while the library building was being renovated. That job was completed more than a year ago. When the books were removed an empty shell remained.

A College Union Board was formed to oversee the various functions of the student union complex, but the first step was to get the building in shape. That was a task for the facilities management committee. Spencer was appointed to the committee by Jim Vickers, an administrator who heads the college's Student Activities Office, a duty that includes supervision of the student union, and advises student government. The other students who were appointed to the committee, in turn, elected Spencer as their chairman.

On the first day of May, WVSC celebrated the second annual Handicapped Impact (Hi Day) event, sponsored by the Access Awareness Council to increase awareness of the handicapped people on campus.

Approximately 150 students participated in Hi-Day events, and attended the picnic.

According to Betty Randall, advisor and student counselor for handicapped students "WVSC had a 20 percent increase in enrollment of handicapped students in the last year."

Mrs. Randle also said that the increase is due to an emphasis on accessibility for disabled persons.

Hi Day also marked the installment of a Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD), making WVSC the first college in this area to have one. A TDD enables people without speech or hearing to use the telephone if parties at both ends have one, and is especially important in emergencies.

Bond Tells W.Va. State Graduates
 To Immerse Themselves In Politics

By JENNIFER BUNDY
 Of The Daily Mail Staff

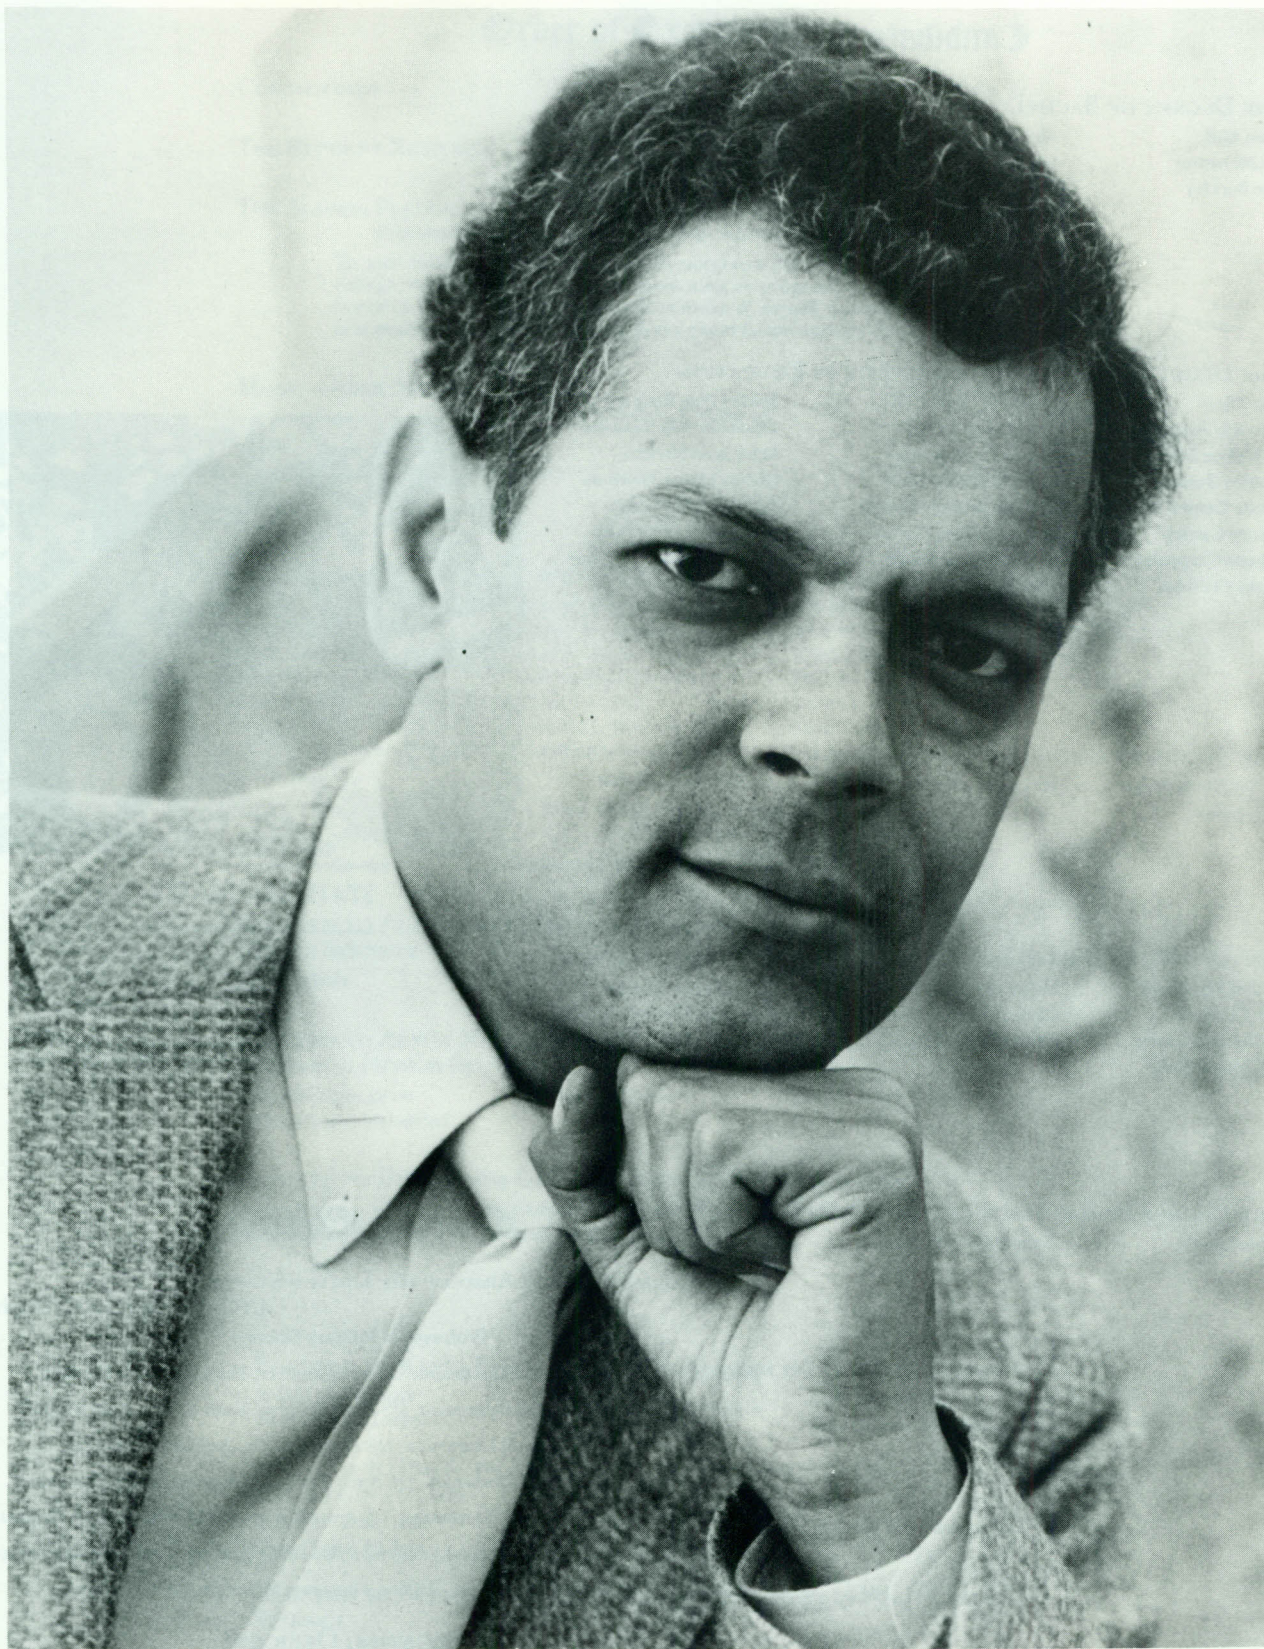

Civil rights activist Julian Bond urged the 1985 graduates of West Virginia State College to immerse themselves in politics.

"What's so frightening about the diminished life chances for some Americans at home, and the heightened chance of loss of all human life worldwide is not just that so many of your fellow citizens aren't aware, but that many are aware and simply do not care.

"Creating that care, recreating that old coalition of conscience which created the fragile protections upon which we sit ought to be first priorities for the future."

Bond told the graduates their children and grandchildren "will have to ask you what you did to keep these things from happening and what you did to make sure they would never happen again."

West Virginia State College

WHAT is West Virginia State College? It is all of us who believe in it---who absent or present, work in it and wish it well. Its constituency is the living and dead and from them the college enjoys an unrestrained loyalty and willing service. It is an exponent of truth which sweeps aside the petty jealousies of men and all propagandic proposals which would minimize or depreciate personality. It is an institution containing faults and defects which challenge the constructive efforts of students, teachers, officers and graduates. It is incomplete and desires to remain so, to be in advantageous position for changing life situations.

WHAT is West Virginia State College? It is spirit; it cannot be touched by hand; it is based upon communions between the living and those who though dead yet live in an immortality made practical through enlistment in the college program which of necessity requires eternity for completion. What is the college? You and those graduates ahead of you are the college.
