

THE ARCH 1991

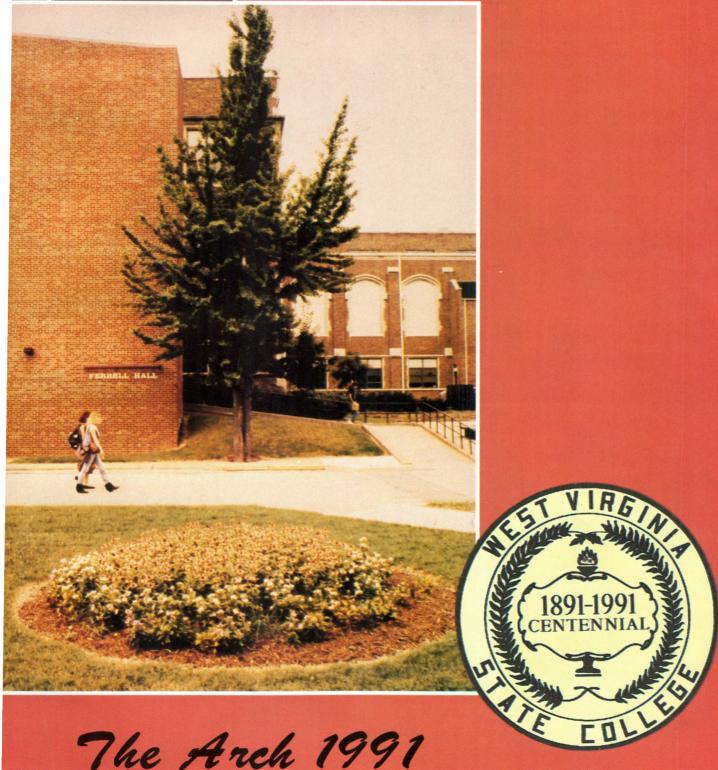

WEST VIRGINIA STATE COLLEGE INSTITUTE, WEST VIRGINIA

In 1891 there were no top 100 songs. Rachmaninoff finished the first version of his Piano Concerto I. Wireless telegraphy had its beginnings. Russia suffered widespread famine. A Dutch anthropologist discovered Java Man.

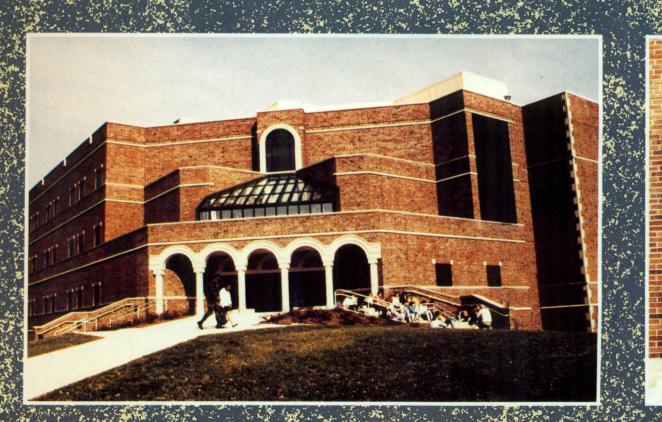

In literature, James Barrie wrote The Little Minister and Thomas Hardy wrote Tess of the d'Urbervilles while Conan Doyle had The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes published in Strand magazine. One of the first great American novelists, Herman Melville, died.

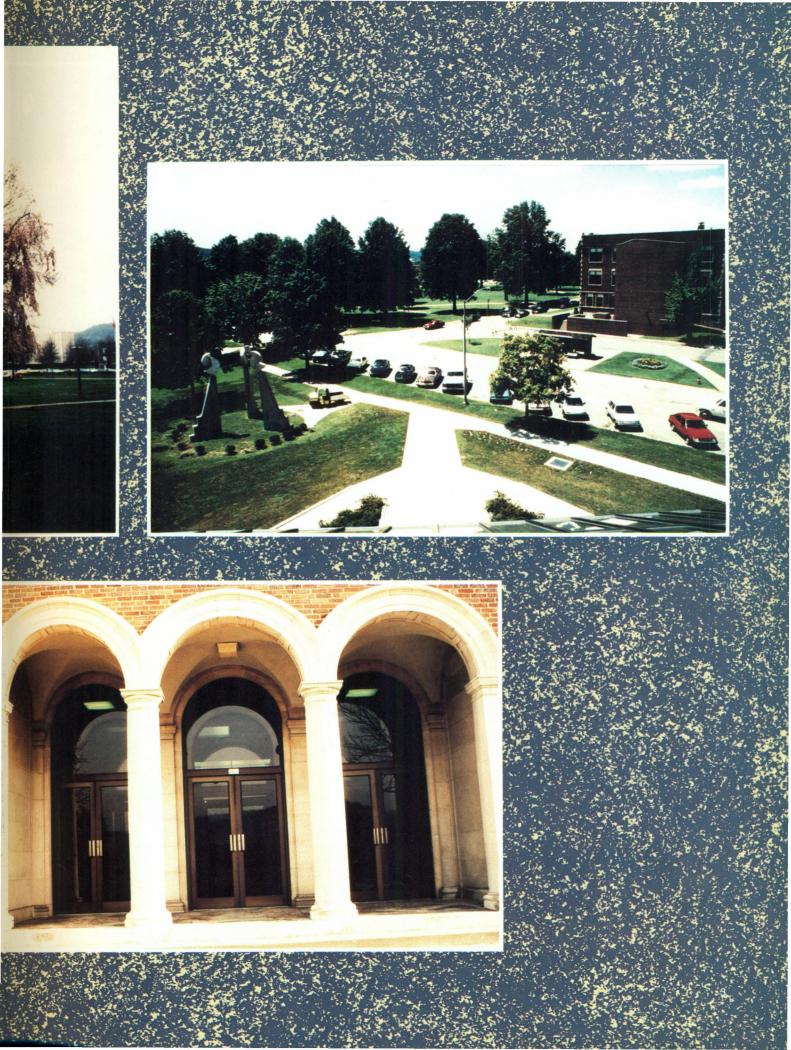

The Triple Alliance — Germany, Austria and Italy — was renewed for twelve years.

Also in 1891 were two additional occurrences in the United States. W. L. Judson invented the clothing zipper, and the legislature of West Virginia passed an act establishing West Virginia Colored Institute.

Neither incident received national note at the time.

Inception Of A Dream

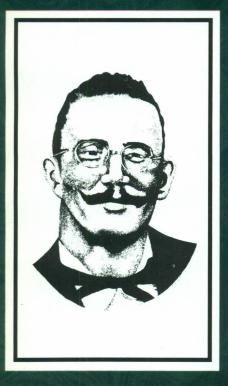

Morrill Act Started It All

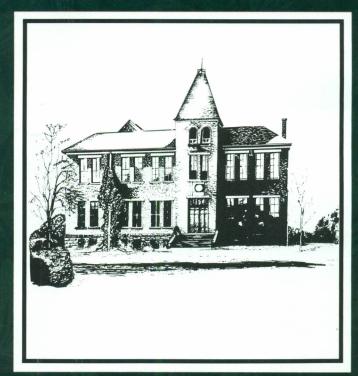

The Second Morrill Act of 1890 required states that had benefitted from the original Morrill Act to provide for the education of Black citizens in agriculture and mechanical arts. At first Storer College near Harper's Ferry was slated to receive aid under the 1910 law; however, Byrd Prillerman, as well as other Black Kanawha County leaders, pressed for a new state school.

Federal funds provided $10,000 for the purchase of land and the construction of a building. The future of West Virginia State College had begun.

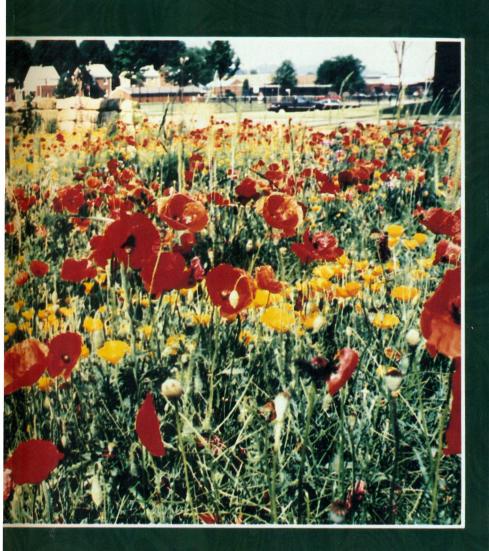

J. EDWIN CAMPBELL - First Principal

FLEMING HALL - 1892

The first session was an experimental term to last until July 15, 1892. The first student in line to enroll was Miss Flavilla Brown. Twenty students registered. Courses were offered in agriculture, horticulture, mechanical arts and domestic science. Requirements were testimonials of good moral character. Also, enrollees could be no younger than fourteen. Tuition was free. There was a matriculation fee of one dollar per term, and board was seven dollars per month. The original building, Fleming Hall, was named for the governor who had supported the establishment of the school. J. Edwin Campbell was the Principal and Professor of English.

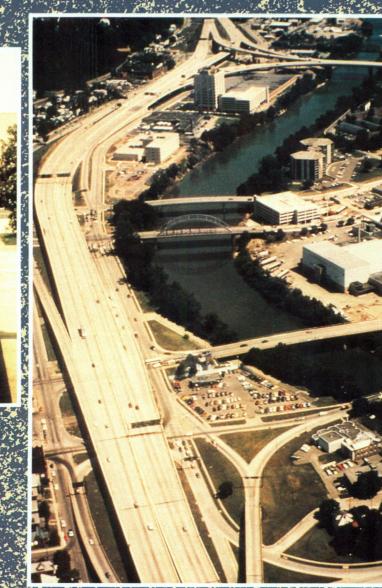

Today West Virginia State College boasts over 15,000 alumni and an enrollment of 4834 students. Associate and Bachelor degrees and twenty-four major area degree programs are offered. Forty buildings now exist.

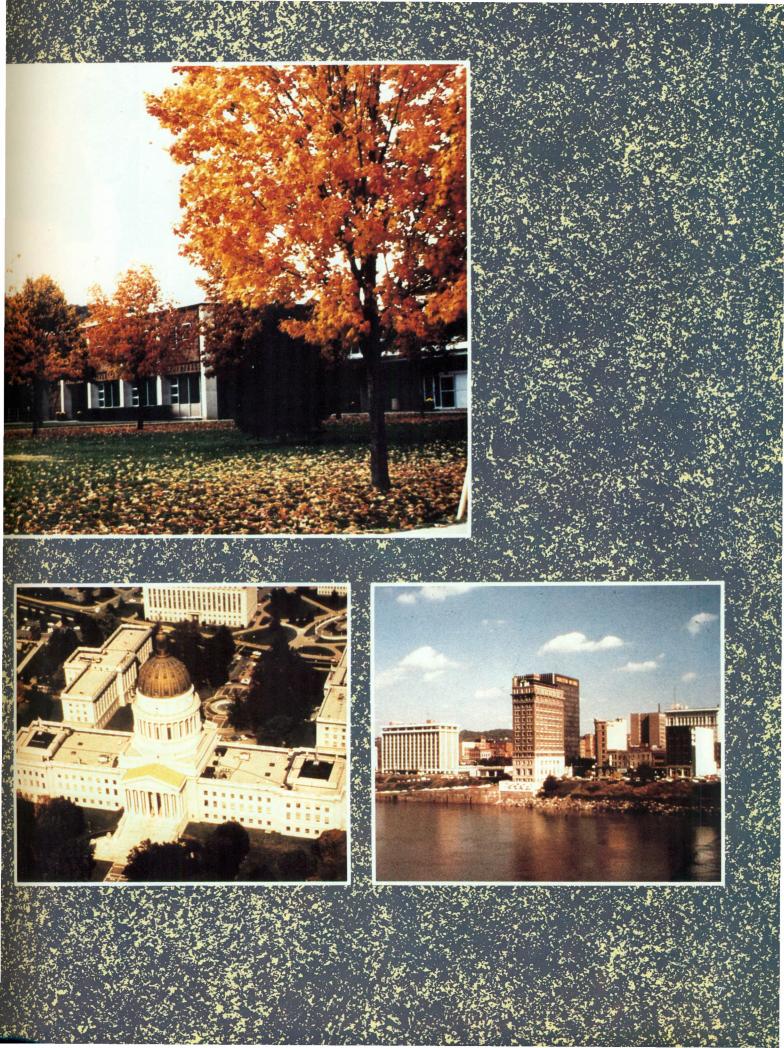

Accessibility

Today's avenues of approach are a far cry from those posted in July 15, 1892.

- 1. Students coming by way of Charleston should take the afternoon train to Piney Grove.
- 2. Students coming by way of Point Pleasant should take the early train to Piney Grove.
- 3. Persons coming by boat should also stop at Piney Grove as the Institute has a landing there.

Integration in Reverse

The 1954 Supreme Court decision in Brown versus the Board of Education of Topeka requiring desegregation of public schools made unconstitutional a section of the West Virginia Constitution prohibiting co-racial education. After this decision was interpreted as applying to colleges also, the West Virginia Board of Education issued a policy statement that "any qualified student may be admitted to any state college under the jurisdiction of the West Virginia Board of Education." Immediately, white students applied for admission for the 1954-55 term. National attention was attracted to what came to be called "integration in reverse." Despite negative predictions, a smooth transition was achieved. The enrollment steadily increased; in ten years, the student population was just 22% Black.

of Human Relations

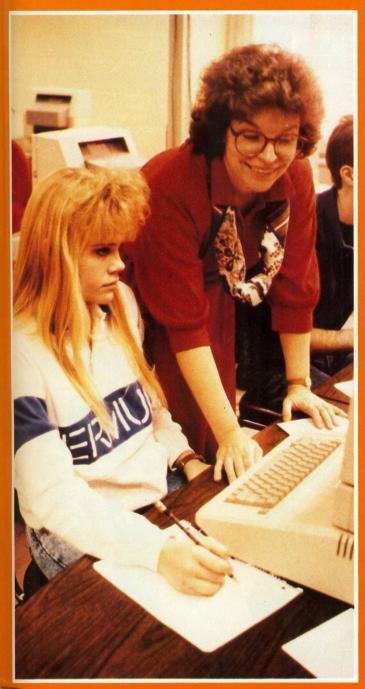

West Virginia State College's official motto, "A Living Laboratory of Human Relations" was born.

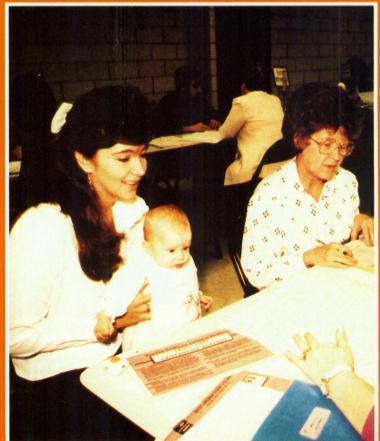

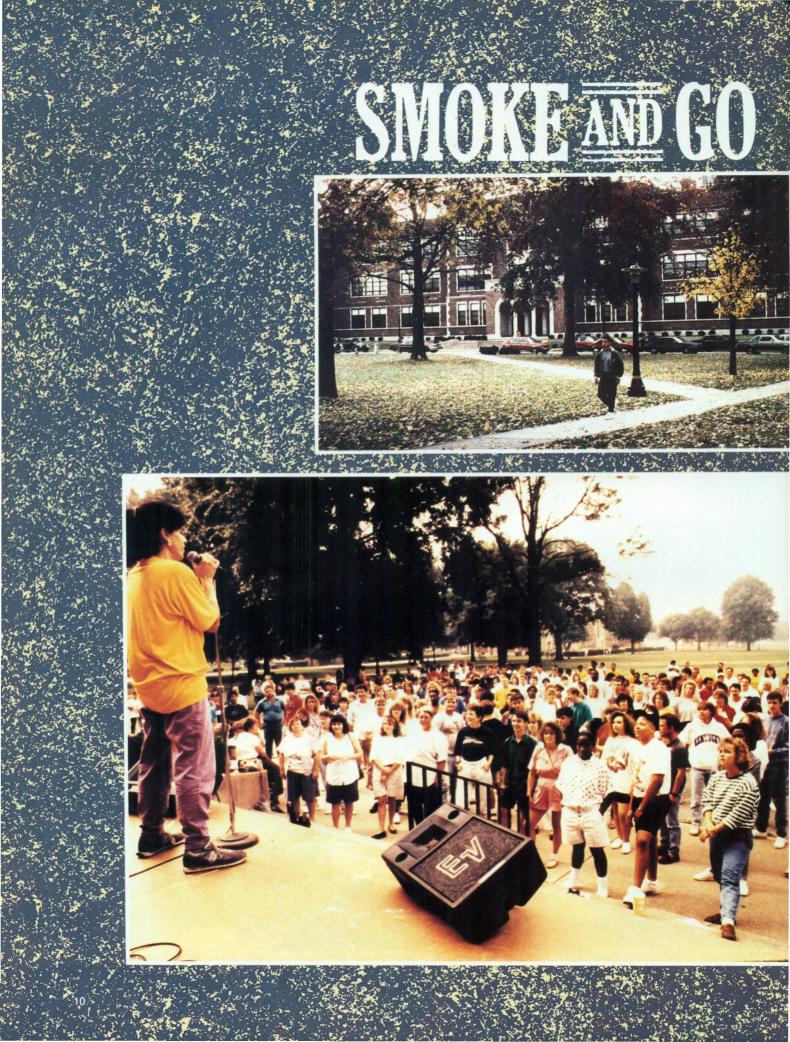

Changing Times

As West Virginia State College neared its fiftieth birthday, dormitory rules and regulations reflected the times.

- 1. Study hours must be observed by all. The morning study period is from 7:15 until 7:45. The evening study period is from 7 until 10:30 o'clock.
- 2. Musical instruments shall not be used during study periods nor early in the morning.

Of the many traditions that exist at West Virginia State College, none are so popular or revered as Homecoming Week, held during the fall semester. Highlights of the week include the Alumni dance, the coronation of Mr. and Ms. State, the Homecoming parade and football game.

Alma Mater of West Virginia State College

There is a place we love so dear Its name we'll ever praise and revere; It's West Virginia State we love, Just one more step from there is heaven above.

We'll love her as the days go by And send her praises to the sky; To place her over all the rest And keep her e'er the dearest and the best.

Shadowed 'neath a deep blue sky; Is State for whom we'll live and we'll die Arise! O men of God and sing, We're loyal to her; we'll always cling.

Chorus

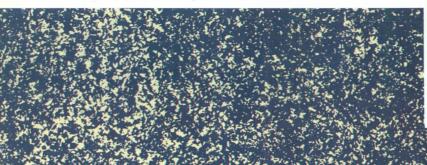

West Virginia's praise we'll sing Life our voices 'til heavens ring As we gaily march along We'll sing a song for Alma Mater How we love her Pride of all our loyal hearts From her we will never part Thoughts of Thee will ne'er be few Alma Mater we love you.

West Virginia State College evidenced involvement in national issues especially during the two world wars when courses of instruction emphasized the war effort and students and alumni enlisted.

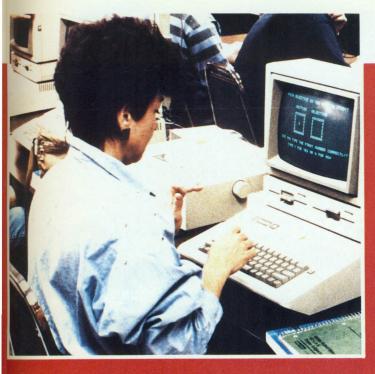

After the bombing of Pearl Harbor, on December 7, 1941, West Virginia State began operating on a war basis. The college's position was that "the winning of the war was the greatest objective before the people of West Virginia and the nation." As a result, all phases of education were accelerated. Since college degree requirements weren't lessened, acceleration enabled students to get four year degrees in three years through year round attendance. New courses arose in civilian defense, first aid and Red Cross Service. The roster of all male and female students participating was printed in the Yellow Jacket — 550 names.

During the sixties the Vietnam War would claim additional West Virginia State students. Again, in 1991. war in the Persian Gulf disrupted the studies of many whose guard units were activated. Those remaining became more conscious of emergency response plans; the Office of Student Affairs dedicated displays to military personnel serving in the Persian Gulf. This war became the topic of classroom and hallway discussion as well as convocation presentations. After one month, the college, with the rest of the nation, celebrated peace.

Celebrating 100 Years ... of Excellence

An aerial view shows a portion of modern day West Virginia State College. To commemorate the college's centennial, West Virginia State College's Relious Charles Byers created permanent ink drawings of past and present campus buildings. This Centennial Art Exhibition was viewed at Della Brown Taylor Art Gallery at the Davis Fine Arts Building on March 17, 1991.

The West Virginia State College campus has changed with the passing of a century. Some of the original structures are seen no more. Others remain — some much the same; others, renovated but recognizable. Amid tradition have sprung new buildings also.

WVSC entered the nineties on a wave of construction initiated in the eighties. Blending the traditional beauty of a dogwood in spring with the familiar technological look of the "DISH", the campus mixed high tech with high touch very successfully.

Old ''A'' Building Still Dominates

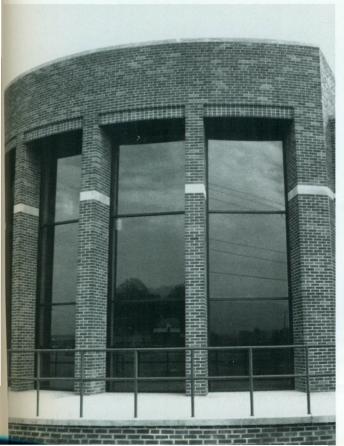

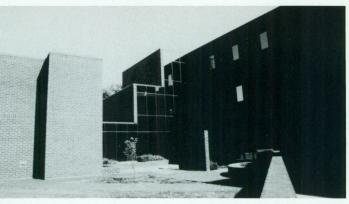

The WVSC campus boasted a modern Community College Component building as well as a new Child Development Center. Mainstays, such as Fleming Pool and faculty housing, remained familiar. The newly renovated Ferrell Hall, still affectionately referred to by many as the "A Building", presided over all.

The ARCHES

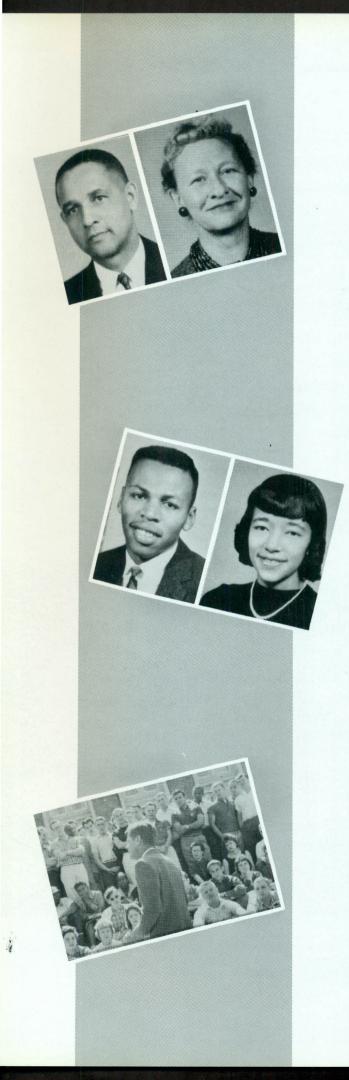

The arches at Ferrell Hall gave West Virginia State College's yearbook its name, the ARCH.

Although WVSC had its inception in 1891, rustlings of integration were not clearly audible until the forties. During the decades since the forties, State has evolved into a totally integrated school.

FORTIES

World War II created new heroes and heroines, the most admired woman of the time being First Lady, Eleanor Roosevelt. WVSC, emphasizing the war effort, responded to the national scene with students and alumni enlisting in the services. Coming into its own, State was visited by such notables as Henry Ford. According to Phil Conley, former editor of the WV Review, "A Comparatively insignificant school has become nationally known as one of the best institutions of its kind in this country." At this time an increasing number of white students began to express interest in attending WVSC.

WVSC in the FIFTIES

Rosa Parks from Montgomery, Alabama, defied segregation laws by refusing to move to the back of a bus - and, consequently, started the Civil Rights Movement. The 1954 Supreme Court decision ruled it unconstitutional to maintain segregated institutions for public education; immediately, white students applied for admission to WVSC. In only ten years, the student population was just 22% Black. This "integration in reverse" led to WVSC's official motto "A Living Laboratory of Human Relations." Also, the Arch came into existence in 1956.

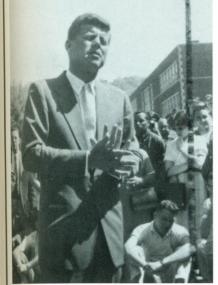

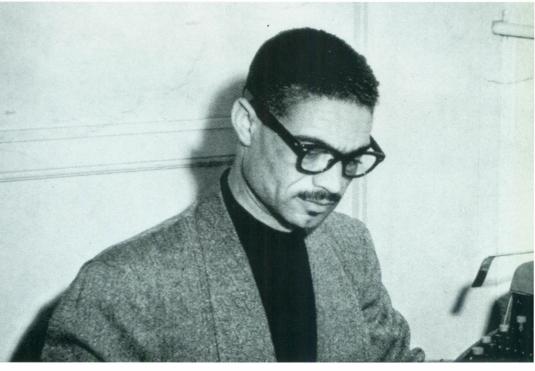

WVSC in the SIXTIES

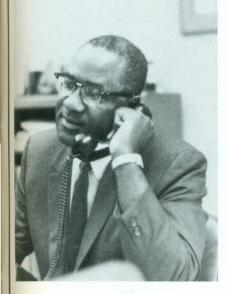

The sixties were times of demonstrations and protests at WVSC as well as at many other colleges. Hemlines became shorter; hair grew longer. At the same time, the grounds were laid for the feminist movement. State's campus became an attraction for well-known personages; in 1960, John F. Kennedy, prior to his "Camelot" term as President, gave an informal talk at State. In 1963 Pearl S. Buck accepted an honorary degree conferred by WVSC. Ten years after integration, success was evidenced.

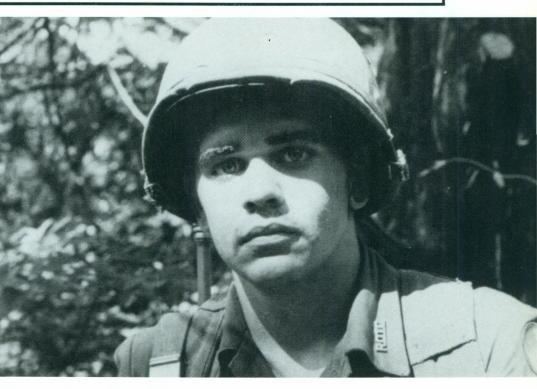

WVSC in the SEVENTIES

In the period when "Watergate" became a household word, WVSC began to serve as the educational and cultural center of the Kanawha Valley. A new college focus was initiated in continuing education to increase the college's educational contribution to the surrounding area. The school also embarked on a campus master plan calling for the upgrading of buildings and facilities. The Community College Component was added to the mission of the institution.

boom, fitness became a major con- operative education. cern. The nation began to experience environmental consciousness. Recycling became a major goal to the nation and to State. The 1986-87 Yellow Jacket basketball team proved to be one of the best teams in the school's history, winning the WVIAC Tournament and advancing to the final round of the NAIA Tournament in Kansas City. Distinguished personages such as Nikki Giovanni and Toni Cade Bambara spoke to State students. One of the most well-known structures on campus, the "A Building", ushered in the decade by being renovated and renamed Ferrell Hall. On campus, emphasis was placed on general education, computer literacy, video

In Memoriam

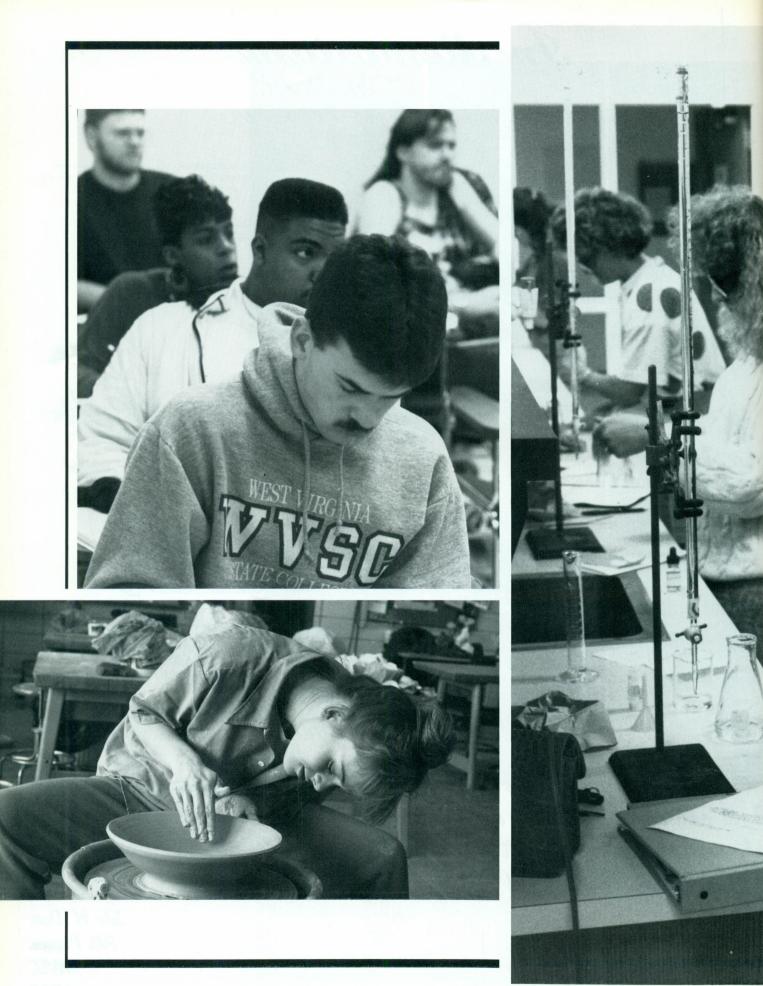

Mr. Joseph Oden

What is West Virginia State College?

It is all of us who believe in it — who absent or present, work in it and wish it well. Its constituency is the living and dead and from them the college enjoys an unrestrained byalty and willing service . . . It is spirit; it cannot be touched by hand; it is based upon communions between the living and those who though dead yet live . . .

> John W. Davis Fifth President W/SC 1932

COMMITMENT TO QUALITY

STUDENT LIFE

By 1914 the school had passed the original goal of trades instruction and was providing more Blacks with an entry to higher education and professional careers. The three basic courses of instruction were English (for trade students), Academic (preparatory to college and the professions), and Normal (teacher training). Especially during Prillerman's presidency, daily life emphasized military discipline and religious instruction.

In 1915 when it became West Virginia Collegiate Institute with authority to grant college degrees, a college department was created with divisions of mathematics, chemistry, French, English language and literature. In 1919, two students received the first college degrees.

* Today at WVSC, emphasis is placed on providing educational opportunities for a diverse student body, composed of people of many cultural backgrounds, different ages, and varied career goals. The college serves a wide community of Black and White, male and female, urban and rural, commuting and resident, full-time and part-time, traditional and nontraditional.

Many thousands of lives have been influenced by the democratic ideals represented by WVSC. Pride in its heritage, commitment to quality, and the ability to change with nationwide changes in higher education will continue to be sources of strength and inspiration for all people associated with West Virginia State College.

WVSC Centennial HIGHLIGHTS

The college officially began a year long centennial observance at the October 1990 Homecoming, a celebration that will continue until the October 1991 Homecoming. Many activities took place during the year, including the publication of a pictorial history of the college. Steve Batson, vice president for planning and institutional advancement, and Ann Brothers Smith, second vice president of the National Alumni Association, cochaired the College Centennial Committee. A centennial seal and logo were developed by R. Charles Byers, a WVSC graduate and assistant vice president for planning and advancement and director of communications. A centennial motto, "Entering Our Second Century of Excellence," was adopted by the Centennial Committee and approved by President Hazo W. Carter, Jr. The seal, logo, and motto were used on stationery, T-shirts, media advertising, etc. All alumni and the general public were invited to attend and participate in as many centennial events as possible.

HALL OF FAME CEREMONY

Traditionally, the ROTC students have led the campus each year in commemorating and honoring the memory of all former West Virginia State College students in particular and Americans in general who served in the Armed Forces of the United States. Special tribute has been paid to those who fell in battle in defense of this country.

On Friday, October 12, 1990, the tenth ROTC Hall of Fame Ceremony was held in the auditorium of Harrison H. Ferrell Building. The Homecoming Convocation and Reserve Officers Training Corps reflected on West Virginia State College's centennial. During State's first centennial, the Military Science Department established a proud tradition of producing outstanding ROTC graduates, eleven of whom have attained the rank of General officers in the U.S. Army. West Virginia State College has been and continues to be the leader among historically Black colleges in the production of General officers for the U.S. Army. The program was dedicated to the memory of Major General Charles Calvin Rogers, 1925-1990.

Lou Myers is Humanities Scholar

Currently moving effortlessly between the disparate roles of the irascible "Vernon Gaines" in the hit NBC-TV series A Different World and the piano-playing "Winning Boy" in The Piano Lesson, Lou Myers is an actor of uncommon versatility and range. Myers' love of performing began while he was growing up in his native Charleston, WV, where he appeared in Sunday School, church and high school drama productions. After serving in the Air Force, he attended West Virginia State College, where he received a B.S. degree in sociology and was active in the drama department. In addition, he earned an M.A. in sociology from New York University.

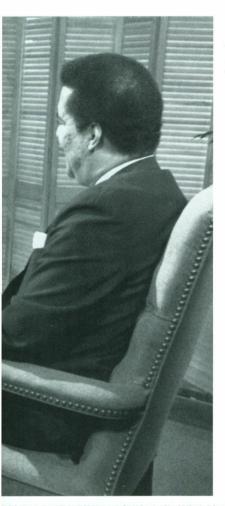

Myers made his Broadway debut in the Negro Ensemble Company's production of The First Breeze of Summer. He received the Audience Development Committee's Audelco Award for his performance in the Off-Off Broadway production of Fat Tuesday. He has also performed in August Wilson's Ma Rainey's Black Bottom (on Broadway) and Fences. Myers also reprised his role of "The Rev. Mosley" in the televised version of The First Breeze of Summer, and has guest starred on The Cosby Show.

Myers has toured throughout the Far East and Africa and to more than 75 United States College Campuses with his one man cabaret act, Me and the Blues. He is the organizer and director of the Tshaka Ensemble, which has performed Greek tragedies and Shakespearean dramas in an African setting at universities and performing arts center nationwide, including the Lincoln Center (NY) Out-of-Doors Festival.

East Hall

Ancella R. Bickley

East Hall was built in 1893 during the administration of J. Edwin Campbell, the first principal of what was then called the West Virginia Colored Institute. Named for its location on the east side of the campus, the building initially served as a boys' dormitory. After a new boys' dormitory was built in 1897, East Hall was used to house the library, chemical laboratory, sewing department, and printing department.

Appointed as the third principal/president in 1898, J. McHenry Jones moved into East Hall rather than into the apartment in the academic building where the two previous presidents had lived. Thus, East Hall with its large rooms and porch became a gracious residence for the president and a site for receptions and other social affairs.

During the years of segregation, black guests could not find adequate accommodations in Charleston; therefore, with the institution's president and his wife as host and hostess, East Hall provided an overnight lodging place for many of the prominent persons who visited the College. Among these visitors were George Washington Carver, W.E.B. DuBois, Channing Tobias, Carter G. Woodson, Jessie Faucett, Mary McLeod Bethune, Roland Hayes, and a host of others, probably including Booker T. Washington.

When Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt visited the College, she did not spend the night in East Hall, but she rested there during the day.

While it served as the home of West Virginia State College presidents, East Hall went through several structural changes, the most dramatic of which was the 1937 move from the east side of the campus to the west side to make room for the new gymnasium, Fleming Hall.

East Hall continued as the residence of the chief administrator of West Virginia State College for seventy-five years. The presidents who lived in it were J. McHenry Jones, Byrd Prillerman, John W. Davis, William J.L. Wallace, and, for a short time, Harold McNeill.

In 1988, in recognition of the important role that it fulfilled as the home of West Virginia State College's presidents, East Hall was placed on the National Register of Historic Places.

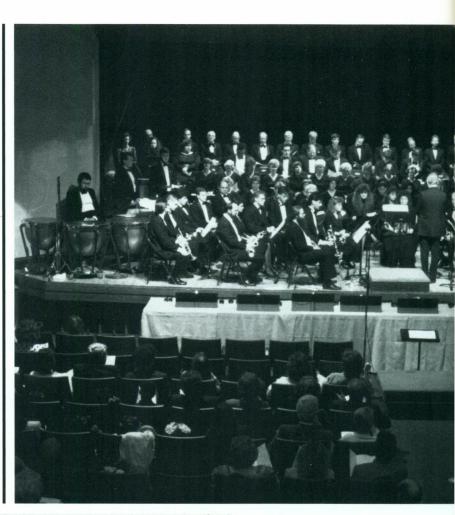

Centennial Celebration Concert

The WVSC birthday party was held on March 17, 1991, one hundred years after the founding of the original institution. A Centennial Art Exhibition featured past presidents' portraits drawn by Toni Kilgore and Drawings of past and present campus buildings drawn by Charles Byers. The display was presented in Della Brown Taylor Gallery.

A Centennial Celebration Concert was held in P. Ahmed Williams Auditorium featuring the WVSC Concert Choir, Charleston Civic Chorus and WVSC Symphonic Brass-Percussion.

According to George Armstrong in "Staging Scene," the selection "Lily of the Valley" "evoked an image of a flowering gem, like the 83-acre campus ..." The second spiritual "Who'll Be a Witness" also was symbolic "because it represented an essential part of the culture that is WVSC's unique heritage."

Dr. Wallace, WVSČ's sixth president who successfully led the college in inaugurating integration in reverse, was introduced at the Centennial Concert. Also introduced were Wallace's successors, Dr. Harold McNeil (retired from the University of Maine and living in Fayetteville, North Carolina), Dr. Thomas Cole, Jr., (president of Clark-Atlanta University); and Dr. Hazo

Carter, Jr., (the ninth and current president).

The crowded auditorium stage was led by music professors Dr. W. Kent Hall and Dr. Truman Dalton. The 35 piece symphonic brass-percussion ensemble represented the wealth of talent locally available, including faculty, students and alumni.

Joining the symphonic brass was an 82 voice choral group formed by merging the WVSC Choir and the Charleston Civic Chorus. Recognition for assistance to the music department was given to Dr. Joseph Grider, retired member of the music faculty, and Dr. Floydehl Anderson and Dr. James Russell, both of whom have served as interim president of the college.

The finale consisted of "Arise, Your Light Has Come" performed by the handbell choir consisting of Lisa Bishop, Robbie Byus, Carol Eich, Steve Gargon, Graham Gillispie, Mel Gillispie, Marie Massey, Nancy McCartney, Brenda Mullina, Brian Thacker and David Williams. The concert culminated in the singing of the WVSC Alma Mater

STUDENT PLAZA OPENING

The Wilson College Union extended its offerings to include a hot dog cart for the new student plaza.

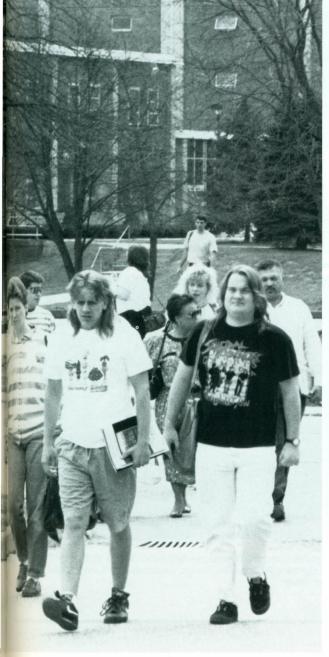

The WVSC Campus Master Plan of 1986 gave three maor pedestrian focal points. The front of the Wilson College Union is listed as second. Since the foreground of the Colege Union is the natural center of gravity for the campus, development of this area will be extensive and diverse to accommodate the convergence of many students, faculty and staff. The student plaza is located in the area between Wilson College Union and Sullivan Hall. It will feature a patterned walkway, fountain-sculpture to provide the main focus, an outdoor dining area and elevated spaces for gatherings and observation. The system for lighting will be flexible to create a variety of night time environments for performances and rallies. The formal and informal seating area should provide locations for rest, study or discussions. The plaza will serve as the cross roads of campus not only because of its size and spatial interest but also for its intensity of use by varied student activities.

Centennial Science Convocation and Hamblin Hall Re-Dedication

History of Hamblin Hall

In 1915, the West Virginia Colored Institute became the West Virginia Collegiate Institute as college degrees could now be granted by the institution. One of the first divisions of the college department was the Division of Chemistry

Under the guidance of President John W. Davis, the college department grew to include new classes in natural science and advanced studies in pre-medicine. Classes in chemistry and natural science were conducted in the Administration Building, completed in 1925. During President Davis' tenure, the West Virginia Legislature changed the name of the institution to West Virginia State College, and the Division of Natural Sciences and Mathematics was established in the 1930's.

In 1952, construction of a new science facility was begun. The building would house the Departments of Biology, Chemistry and Physics. Moving into this new building was surely an exciting experience for faculty and students alike. Adolph P. Hamblin, Professor of Biology, 1921 to 1966, witnessed many changes in the institution as it grew in terms of students and facilities. For many years, Mr. Hamblin was the Department of Biology. He devoted many hours to the collection and preparation of materials for use in the biology courses offered by the College. Many of these items remain in the Department of Biology as a reminder of one man's devotion to his students and institution.

The budget required that biological specimens be collected by the instructor and students to ensure an adequate collection of materials for educational purposes. In addition to increasing the number and variety of specimens held by the Department, Mr. Hamblin's means of acquiring materials also exposed the students to the practical lessons of specimen preservation, as well as anatomy, embryology, taxonomy, etc. Few students of Mr. Hamblin can forget the clicks as he reviewed their laboratory work or the respect he commanded in the classroom. Mr. Hamblin has been remembered as a taskmaster, one truly concerned with the quality of education that his students received, and with reverence by colleagues and students.

Renovation of Hamblin Hall was begun on October 26, 1987 and completed in 1989. Housed within this state-of-the-art facility are offices, classrooms and laboratories for Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and Nuclear Medicine, as well as the College computer center. With the re-dedication of this facility we pay homage to a gentleman and a scholar — one who taught, guided and inspired more than four decades of students.

Athletics

Athletes have always been very important at WVSC. One of the school's most outstanding coaches was Mark Cardwell, who led the Yellow Jacket football team to share the national championship in 1950 and coached the basketball team to the CIAA championship in 1949. During Homecoming 1990, the West Virginia State College Sports Hall of Fame was dedicated in honor of Coach Mark H. Cardwell.

tive sport at WVSC is football. The first team was organized and coached by John Gilmer. Players on that team bought their own uniforms.

1901 marked entrance into interscholastic athletic activities. The first team, the "Yellow Jackets", played Storer College. The score of this first game, played in Charleston on an old race track above Bradford St., was 18-2. The Yellow Jackets were victorious

One of the finest records in football occurred under Coach Mark Cardwell. In 1950 the Yellow Jackets shared the National Championship with Southern University of Louisiana. Early football greats were Leonard Hughes and Amos Bartlett.

The New Era of State football began under the guidance of Coach Bob Gobel in 1990. The season began with a group of young, eager prospects led by only five seniors. Al-

The oldest organized competi- though the young Yellow Jackets played with tremendous effort and desire, the lack of experienced players produced a 4 and 6 record.

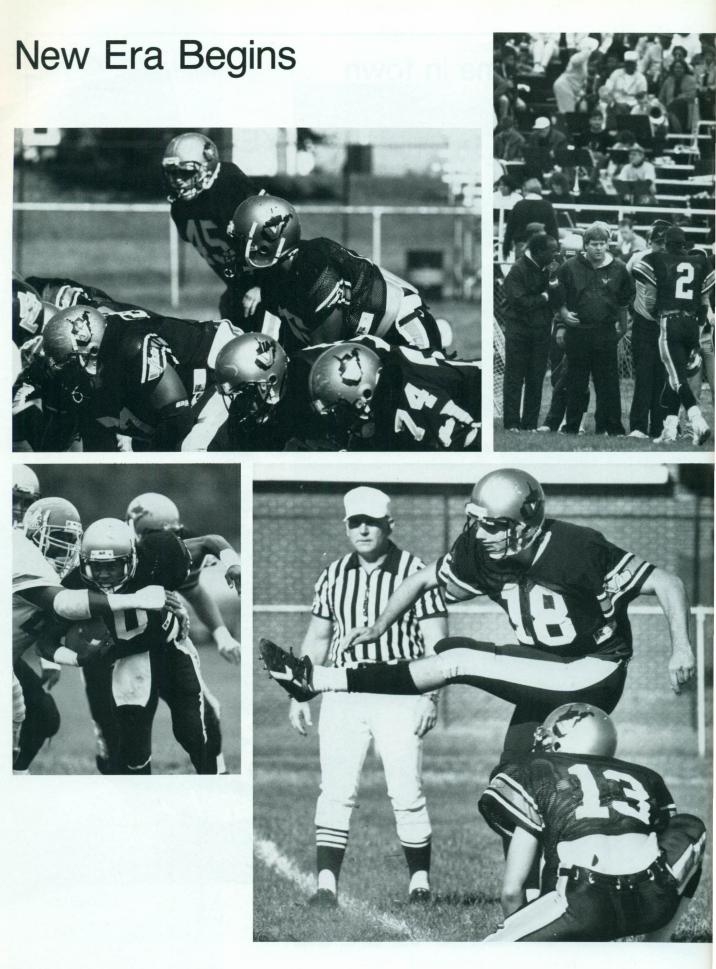

Nonetheless, the season was not without its shining stars. Quarterback Kenneth Grier set conference and national records in passing and total offense. Against Glenville, he passed for an NAIA record 611 yards. Besides finishing the year with over 3500 yards passing, he also led the nation in total offense.

Receiver Carlton Jackson set an NAIA record by catching 19 passes in one game. His steady performance earned him first team NAIA All-American honors and a pro contract with the British Columbia Lions in the CFL

The team members looked forward to the next season when they would be a year older and a year wiser.

BASKETBALL ALWAYS POPULAR AT WVSC

STRONG NUCLEUS PROMISED FOR '92

In 1918-1919, basketball came into existence at WVSC. Dallas "Johnnie" Brown served as captain. During their first season, the Yellow Jackets played YMCA teams from Columbus, Ohio, and Wilberforce U., winning both games.

In 1947, under Coach Mark Cardwell, the Yellow Jackets became national champions, hailed as the only undefeated team in the nation. They were invited to participate in a tournament at the Cow Palace in San Francisco where they defeated Santa Clara.

The team became so popular they made a second tour of the West Coast in 1949-1950 as ambassadors of good will. In 1949 they received the CIAA championship and acquired a record of winning 26 consecutive games.

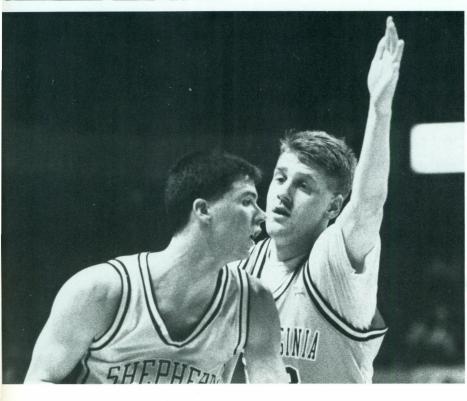

The men's basketball team ended its season with an overall record of 10 and 17 and a WVIAC conference record of 8 and 10. Only two seniors played: Rodney Hairston, the leading scorer on the team, made second team all conference and Edward Harmon became ineligible second semester.

The outlook for the '91-'92 season seemed brighter with eight returning players: Tim Prewitt (Sr.), Dwayne Robbins (Sr.), Antonio Hill, Donnie Haynes, Dwayne Murray, Shin Don Bolling, Bill Moon and Pat Stone.

During their freshman year, this predominantly Sophomore team had been very successful so the '90-'91 year had been anticipated as a very good one. Bad luck seemed to control the season, however, and the team jokingly referred to suffering from a "Sophomore Jinx." With a nucleus of returning players, the '91-'92 season looked promising.

BASEBALL KEEPS ON WINNING Yellow Jackets Champions Again in 1991

Official baseball records for WVSC have been difficult to obtain. The general consensus is that baseball began about the same time as football.

The 1991 baseball team ended their season with an overall record of 29 wins and 19 losses. They were 17 and 3 in the WVIAC Conference. Three players made all conference: Chris Wheeler (jr.) - Designated hitter; David Little (fresh.) - Pitcher; and Corey Morris (fresh.) - First Baseman. Chris Wheeler also made All-Area Seven and Honorable Mention All American.

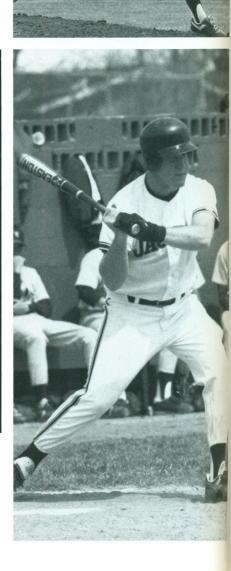

Coach Calvin Bailey completed his fourteenth year as head baseball coach for the Yellow Jackets. During that time, the team established an overall record of 327 wins and 181 losses. In addition, they were WVIAC Conference champions in 1978, 1979, 1982, 1986, and 1988; and District 28 Champions in 1978, 1979, 1983 and 1991.

GRADUATION

Graduation commencements were held in December and in May. A traditional part of graduation at West Virginia State College has always been the academic procession, composed of administrators, honored guests, faculty, graduates and the WVSC College Advisory Board.

Both commencements during State's Centennial year featured distinguished speakers: December Speaker was Lauro Cavazos, U.S. Secretary of Education; and May speaker was the Honorable Gaston Caperton, Governor of West Virginia.

Participation of alumni graduates of WVSC in the graduation ceremony gave special meaning to the Centennial Graduation.

The Alumni Pledge

To join hands with other alumni in perpetuating the ideals of my college, nurturing its growth and promoting its program, to serve with honor in my chosen profession and to make of myself a symbol of the best traditions of my college this is my commission and my challenge.

Mace begins ceremonial march

Dr. Carter and ceremonial medallion

The Academic Mace precedes the entire procession. Carried by the grand marshall, this staff is a symbol of authority. Its placement and removal signify the opening and closing of ceremonial sessions.

The WVSC mace was designed from a spindle from the staircase of West Hall, the second building erected on State's campus. The mace was restored by James Huffman when he was assistant director of admissions at WVSC.

The Medallion worn by the President represents the chains of office. Incorporated within the medallion is a reproduction of the seal of the college. It is this seal that is impressed on the diplomas awarded to the graduates of WVSC and other official documents.

The medallion is a single piece of crystal, five inches in diameter, designed and created by Cuthbert Smith, class of 1960, retired Professor of Art.

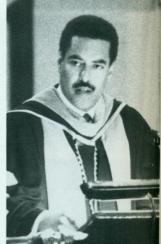

May Commencement

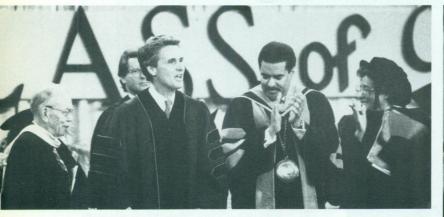

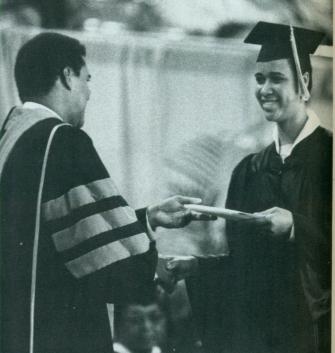

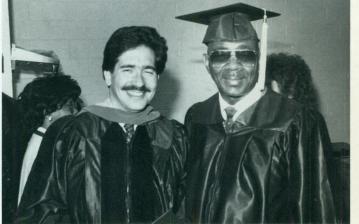

Speaker for the Ninety-sixth annual commencement held in May was thirty-first Governor of West Virginia, the Honorable Gaston Caperton. Commencement was held in the Charleston Civic Center.

What is West Virginia State College

What is West Virginia State College? It is all of us who believe in it — who absent or present, work in it and wish it well. Its constituency is the living and dead and from them the college enjoys an unrestrained loyalty and willing service. It is an exponent of truth which sweeps aside the petty jealousies of men and all propagandic proposals which would minimize or depreciate personality. It is an institution containing faults and defects which challenge the constructive efforts of students, teachers, officers and graduates. It is incomplete and desires to remain so, to be in advantageous position for changing life situations.

What is West Virginia State College? It is spirit; it cannot be touched by hand; it is based upon communions between the living and those who though dead yet live in an immortality made practical through enlistment in the college program which of necessity requires eternity for completion. What is the college? You and those graduates ahead of you are the college.
